1. On the evening of [REDACTED] 1951, the Laerz-vietzen road was blocked by a barrier. All of a sudden, the entire airfield area about 500 meters from the barrier was brightly illuminated. Twelve single-jet fighters and 1 twin-jet bomber took off at 8:25 p.m. Immediately after the take-off, the lights were switched off. About 25 minutes later, the field was again illuminated while a jet plane landed. The other planes which had taken off landed at intervals of 5 minutes. During each landing spotlights illuminated the field area. *

3. The entire occupation at the field could not be observed between 2:15 and 4 p.m. on [REDACTED] because of hazy weather. About 2:25 p.m., two MIG-15s [REDACTED] landed at the field.  No incoming or outgoing shipments were observed up to [REDACTED]. Four railroad tank cars, which had a capacity of 15 tons each, were on the spur track. Their contents were transferred into five 4,500-liter tank trucks [REDACTED].
